BELFAST STRIKE SETTLED

THE strike of engineers in Belfast shipyards ended on Saturday night, and there is expected to be a complete resumption of work in the yards and in the aircraft industry on Wednesday.

By 1,309 votes to 442, the engineers accepted the new terms offered by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, which had been negotiated on Thursday with the Amalgamated Engineers' Union at a conference arranged by the Ministry of Labour, and held under the chairmanship of the Northern Premier.

The new agreement provides for the introduction of a piece-work system, which will yield to a man of average ability an increase of not less than 27½ per cent. on a new basic rate of 69s. 9d. per week.

In the period which will elapse before the piece-work system comes into operation men on production work will receive an increase of 8s. per week, and maintenance men an increase of 6s.

Shop committees are to be set up to negotiate rates or prices for this class of work. There is to be no victimisation; every man is to get his own job back, and the shop stewards will have full liberty to operate.

Meetings of workers in the aircraft industry, who engaged in a sympathetic strike, and of engineers in another yard in the city, who were on strike, will take place tomorrow.

The engineers' strike began six weeks ago on a demand by the men for a rate of 3s. per hour, an increase of just over 1s. an hour.

The five Belfast aircraft workers who were released from prison on Friday appeared at a meeting arranged by the shop stewards' movement in Belfast last night, and were introduced to the audience, not by their own names, but by their prison numbers. A silent vote of sympathy was passed.

Speakers at the meeting welcomed the engineers' wage agreement.

The Yorkshire coalfield strike is practically ended.

Thirty thousand men at Doncaster are returning after the holidays, and the last of the Wombwell pits—Cortonwood—which was the first to down tools, took only ten minutes yesterday to fall in line with the "go back" example of other pits.

A similar decision was reached by men at all collieries in the Hemsworth Division.

Fierce Air Battles Over Germany

BETWEEN 500 and 750 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, with probably from 750 to 1,000 covering fighters, yesterday made one of the greatest flights of the war over German territory. They struck at aircraft factories from the German Baltic coast to Posen in Poland, a Press Association message stated last night.

Fierce battles raged almost all day. Within a few hours of Germany's Lachtung Radio reporting that the last R.A.F. Mosquito night bombers had left after attacking Essen and other objectives in West and North-West Germany, powerful formations of American day bombers were reported approaching from many different points, including the north and the Baltic.

The warnings continued, says Reuter, from ten o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon, and air combats were reported over Kiel, Mecklenberg and Pommern. Aircraft factories were attacked at Tutow, 35 miles beyond Rostock, on the Baltic coast. Warnemunde, the Baltic, Marienburg in East Prussia, 200 miles north-east of Berlin, near Danzig.

ESSEN RAID

A British Air Ministry communiqué yesterday stated: "On Saturday night, Mosquitoes of Bomber Command attacked Essen and other objectives in West and North-West Germany. Mines were laid in enemy waters. None of our aircraft is missing."

An announcement from the H.Q., U.S. Strategic Air Forces in Europe, yesterday stated that strong forces of Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th Air Force attacked aircraft factories at Tutow, Warnemund and Marienburg, in Germany, and Posen, in Poland, yesterday. Mustangs, Lightnings and Thunderbolts of the 8th and 9th Air Forces, in very great strength, provided escort and support for the bombers.

The German communiqué stated last night that 87 American planes, of which 65 were four-engined bombers, were brought down by German fighters and flak artillery.

Thirteen American aircraft were shot down over Denmark yesterday, according to the Swedish Radio. Bombs were dropped at Slagelse, but no damage was caused. Over Western Aaland seven aircraft, five of them bombers, were said to have crashed, one of them in the village of Mellfotte, the crew of which were killed.—(Reuter.)

A Stockholm message says that thirteen four-engined U.S. bombers made forced landings in Sweden yesterday following the raid on Germany. Six of the machines came down at Malmoe and three at Rinkeby. The crews of ten planes, numbering approximately 100, were reported unhurt.—(Associated Press)

Headquarters, U.S. Strategic Air Forces in Europe, yesterday announced that 60 enemy aircraft were claimed shot down in aerial combat on Saturday by Liberators of the 8th Air Force attacking aircraft factories at Brunswick. Flying Fortresses attacking German aerodromes encountered no German aircraft. Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs escorting the bombers and Thunderbolts and Lightnings on a sweep in the Frankfurt area claimed a total of 88 German fighters destroyed. This brings to 148 the total of German aircraft claimed destroyed in all of Saturday's operations. In addition, a considerable number of German aircraft were claimed destroyed and damaged on the ground by Fighters and bombers. Thirty-four British bombers and 24 Fighters are missing from Saturday's operations.

Allies and Germans Join in Service

THE Germans and Allies, less than 400 yards apart, joined in the same Easter Service on the Garigliano front yesterday. Protestant and Catholic Services were broadcast to German troops, who, within sight of the field altar, held their fire.

An address delivered to the Germans wished them a "Happy Easter."—(Reuter.)

Diviner Helps to Locate Body

George Carberry, farmer, of Cordoolagh, Co. Fermanagh, who has a high reputation locally as a diviner, helped the R.U.C. to discover the body of Patrick McMahon (36), of Legacurry, in Cresternan Lake. McMahon had been seen crossing a field leading to the lake, and was missing from his home for two days. Despite widespread dragging operations, the body was not located until Carberry was brought out on the lake and pointed out the spot. At the inquest, a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was passed.

Balkan Towns Shelled

Yesterday's communiqué from Mediterranean Allied Force Advance Headquarters said: "On the coast of Dalmatia the enemy-occupied town of Bar and its harbours, with other enemy positions at Ulcinj, were shelled by light naval forces on Thursday night."

Japanese Claim Indian Base

AGAINST the claim made by the Japanese News Agency on Saturday night to have captured Kohima—the Allied base 40 miles inside India, on the road from Imphal to the Assam-Bengal railway—Admiral Mountbatten's Headquarters yesterday admitted a small initial penetration, but reported that a counter-attack was successful.

Reuter's special correspondent in New Delhi cables that Japanese forces which attacked Kohima succeeded in reaching the outskirts, but were forced out again by a counter-attack, and are being driven back.

Tammu, a border village south-east of Imphal, is in Japanese hands, but, as in the case of Tiddim, British and Indian forces held on until it was no longer strategically wise to do so. They retired to strongpoints on the Tammu-Imphal road, about 50 miles from Imphal, and have defeated every Japanese attempt to penetrate further.

While the Imphal, Ukhrul, and Tammu roads remain in Allied hands, the Japanese are prevented from bringing in their motorised vehicles.

Imphal is the greatest tactical prize in the area, with enormous supplies of rice.

The South-east Asia communiqué, reporting the successful counter-attack at Kohima, said:—"Our operations are proceeding." It added that Japanese pressure on the outskirts of the base was being maintained.

A Japanese attack on a hill feature north of the Imphal plain, which Allied troops captured on Saturday, was repulsed without difficulty.

Tokyo made a claim yesterday to have captured Khoma, and also a "keypoint" on the Kohima-Dimapur highway," adding that "owing to the tight cordon, the enemy—several thousand strong—is doomed."

There is a strong feeling in Washington that the fighting at Kohima and the Imphal plain marks the real opening of the battle of "Burma-India for 1944," writes the Washington correspondent of the New York Times. The potential seriousness of the Japanese thrusts is not minimised by military experts in the capital, he said, but there is a general disposition to expect ultimate Allied success.

Tokio Radio said to-day that "the fall of Imphal is now only a question of time." South of Imphal, and nine miles north-west of Tamu, the British 20th Division is in full retreat, it added.

North-east of Imphal, on the Ukhrul road, the Japanese pushed within ten miles of the town and cut its main supply line—the Imphal-Manipur road.

Russians Sweep Forward In Rumania

Spanish Seize Oil Supplies

MANLESS TANKS IN ITALY

ALLIED gunners have broken a new German attempt to penetrate the tightly held Allied bridgehead perimeter with radio-controlled "pony" tanks.

This new German sortie with manless tanks has failed as completely as the initial experiment in February, says Reuter's Special Correspondent.

At dawn on Friday four of the "pony" tanks were seen crawling across the flat lands towards the bridgehead's right flank. They were set moving in the vicinity of the Mussolini Canal, four miles south-east of Cisterna, apparently to mow down the wire and other defences screening the Fifth Army's forward positions. Allied gunners destroyed three of the tanks and damaged the fourth.

To the left round the perimeter the gunners scored direct hits on a 60-ton German Tiger tank two miles north-west of Cisterna. Another tank was destroyed on the road leading to the Allied lines three miles south-east of Carroceto.

With fine weather continuing on all fronts, numerous patrol clashes and artillery exchanges have occurred on the main front, though the Cassino area itself is so quiet that it does not enter to-day's picture.

A strong German patrol just north of Arielli was repulsed, and Allied artillery made a direct hit on a German observation post half-a-mile north of Tollo.

On the Eighth Army front an Allied patrol captured an entire German outpost two miles north-west of Ateleta, inland from the Adriatic, killing the commander and taking eleven prisoners.—(Reuter.)

Duff Cooper Sees French Leaders

British concern over the latest crisis between the French North African Committee and the French High Command was reflected yesterday in visits paid to General Giraud in the morning and General de Gaulle later by Mr. Duff Cooper, who was believed to have tried to improve relations between them, states an Associated Press cable from Algiers.

General Giraud, in a bitter reply to General de Gaulle, states the correspondent, charged the French Committee and its President with violating Republican Law as well as the Committee's ordinances and agreement, and refused to recognise the Decree abolishing the post of Commander-in-Chief. He defied de Gaulle to oust him.

Telegraphists Get Busier

Plans to meet a vastly increased flow of telegrams between this country and Great Britain have been prepared by officials of the Department of Posts and Telegraphs.

Since the announcement of the British ban on phone calls between that country and Ireland some increase has taken place in the number of telegrams passing between the two countries, and a corresponding adjustment of staff made to meet it in Eire. Should the need arise, staffs can be very considerably augmented at short notice. Departmental officials do not, however, think that the full effects of the ban will become apparent until after the Easter holidays.

Rent Allowance For Gardai

Under their new Pay Allowances Order, members of the Gardai are to receive a rent allowance until their children reach the ages of 18, in the case of a son, and 21 in the case of a daughter, depending on where the children are living. Hitherto the allowance stopped when children reached 16 years. The Order is applicable to both married and widowed members of the Force. If his family is living in the barrack with him the Garda is not entitled to receive the allowance, but if he is maintaining a house he will receive it. As a result of the Order, the annual rent allowance varies between £18 and £40, depending on the locality and the man's rank.

This provision serves to offset to some extent the disappointment caused by the Garda Pay and Allowances Order, which has been considered by the Representative Body.

104 To-morrow

Mr. Patrick Rielly, of Moyarswood, Woodlawn, Ballinasloe, celebrates his 104th birthday to-morrow. He is still a hardy and active man. Born in 1840, he well remembers the famine years, as he was then working on his father's land as a boy. He is very popular with all his neighbours, and likes to joke and tell stories in his native language. He was a moderate drinker and smoker. He is the father of eight children, seven of whom are

BATTLE ON CZECH FRONTIER

THE Soviet communiqué last night stated that the Red Armies had captured over 200 inhabited localities in Rumania, cut the railway between Jassy and Pascani (forty miles to the west), and advanced to within three miles of Odessa.

Earlier reports stated that the Russians had reached the frontiers of Czechoslovakia.

Three Miles to Odessa

The Soviet communiqué last night stated:—

During Sunday, west of Skala, our troops, overcoming enemy resistance and counter-attacks, continued to fight for the liquidation of the encircled German grouping, and forced their way into a number of localities.

Advancing between the Rivers Pruth and Sereth, Soviet forces have taken over 200 inhabited localities on Rumanian territory, including Larga and Zahorna, 7½ miles north-west of Jassy.

The railway line, Jassy-Pascani, has thus been cut by our troops.

In the Odessa direction, our troops, overcoming enemy resistance, fought their way forward, and occupied 21 localities, including one 12 miles west of Odessa, and two railway stations, of which one, Sorti Rovochnaya, is three miles north of Odessa.

Pascani is 40 miles west of Jassy, on the railway to Ploesti and Bucharest. The cutting of the Jassy-Pascani railway (says Reuter) leaves the Jassy garrison with only one free railway, the southbound line to Galatz.

CZECH BATTLE

From Reuter's Staff Correspondent in Moscow.

The battle for Czechoslovakia opened along the crests of the Carpathian passes in blizzards and thick snowdrifts. Latest front reports tell of savage fighting along the frontier.

Soviet mortars, artillery and planes are raking German positions in the valleys.

The mountain roads, heavily mined by the Germans, are under heavy snowdrifts, and horses dragging guns and supplies are struggling up them belly-deep in snow.

Red Army mountain troops, after intensive training on the Caucasus peaks, have gone into action for the first time in the Carpathian battles.

IN RUMANIA

Marshals Zhukov and Koniev have linked up in Rumania between the towns of Sereth and Dornhoi, and are now advancing together in an effort to drive the Germans from the whole stretch of hilly country north of Jassy from the Pruth to the Carpathian line.

Zhukov's troops in this sector are already in action west of the River Sereth, and rolling up the German fortifications on the right bank of the river, while Koniev's men are preparing to storm new crossings further south.

With Koniev's big new advance the German position at Jassy has deteriorated sharply.

Estimates of a number of German divisions in Rumania are from 15 to 20. More troops are arriving daily.

The German commentator, von Hammer, stated last night:—North-west of Jassy, Rumanian covering forces are fighting violently. Their deeply staggered main forces are barring the way.

ODESSA CLIMAX

Outside Odessa the battle is moving up to its climax, with General Malinovsky's men fighting three miles north of the city.

"The withdrawal across the Dniester of the German forces from Moldavia having been completed, only the defenders of Odessa are left to face the Russians," said Vichy Radio yesterday, adding, "the fortifications of Odessa will allow the garrison to hold out as long as the German High Command consider it useful."

Clouds of dust from the débris of ruined buildings hang thickly over Odessa, which is almost empty of civilians. Those who are left are half starved, without fresh water, and dreading epidemics on the lines of the plague of 1812.

The German communiqué yesterday stated that on Saturday the Russians attacked at Perekop, in the Crimea, on a broad front, but all break-through attempts were frustrated. In Eastern Bukovina, it said, Rumanian security units were engaged in fighting against a slowly advancing enemy. A fairly strong German force in the area of Kamenets-Podolsk avoided encirclement in fourteen days' fighting. Between Stanislavov and Tarnopol German and Hungarian forces drove the Russians further back to the east. South-east of Ostrov and south of Pskov the Russians received heavy losses in attacks on the German positions.—(Reuter.)

HULL SAYS: "WE WILL NOT COERCE NEUTRALS"

MR. CORDELL HULL, broadcasting last night in Washington, declared that "agreement for common action between the British Commonwealth, the Soviet Union, China, and the United States is a solid framework on which all the future policy of international organisation must be built."

Stability, but not reaction, is his immediate objective in Europe, he stated, and added that it is important to encourage the establishment of strong progressive governments; that the Atlantic Charter is an expression of fundamentals, not a code law, and that the Moscow declaration of policy towards Italy was being carried out.

Speaking of neutral nations, he said:—"It is clear that Allied strength makes only one outcome to the war possible. That strength makes it clear that we are not asking neutral nations to expose themselves to certain destruction when we ask them not to prolong the war by sending aid to the enemy.

"We can no longer acquiesce in these nations drawing from the resources of the Allied world, when, at the same time, they contribute to the death of troops, whose sacrifice contributes to their salvation as well as ours. We will not coerce. We ask them only, but with insistence, to cease aiding our enemies."

UNITY

"We are proceeding with the matter of an international organisation to maintain peace and prevent aggression," Mr. Hull continued. "It must provide for an international Court for the development and application of law to the settlement of international controversies which fall within the realm of law, for the development of machinery for adjusting controversies to which the field of law has not yet been extended, and for other institutions for the development of new rules to keep abreast of a changing world with new problems and new interests."

It was hardly possible that more than thirty boundary questions in Europe could be settled while fighting was in progress, he said, and added: "The United States' offer to be of service to Poland and the Soviet Union is still open. We in this country have moved from a deep-seated tendency toward separate action to the knowledge and conviction that only through unity of action can there be achieved in this world the results which are essential for the continuance of free peoples," Mr. Hull continued. "We have moved from a careless tolerance of evil institutions to the conviction that free Governments and Nazi and Fascist Governments cannot exist together in this world. An understanding of these points will help to clarify the policy which this Government has been, and is, following."

Of American policy towards France, he said:—"We have no purpose or wish to govern France or to administer any affairs save those which are necessary for military operations against the enemy. The French National Committee is, of course, not the Government of France, and we cannot recognise it as such.

"In Italy our interests are similar—to assist in the development at the earliest moment of a free and democratic Italian Government."

Mr. Hull said that there was no difference of opinion among the Allies that the Japanese military system was directed toward conquest, and that there would be no security until that system was destroyed."

In conclusion, he said: "The free nations have been brought to the very brink of destruction by allowing themselves to be separated and divided."

BIG PLAN FOR IRISH GOLF

From J. P. Rooney.

TWO Irishmen are planning to put Irish golf right on top of the world when the war ends. Nothing like it was ever attempted in pre-war days, not even by the Americans, and it is going to cost in prize-money alone up to £20,000. The two men (there are others in the background, of course) are Dublin's Under-Sheriff, Dr. Lorcan Sherlock, and Professor Pierce Purcell, Professor of Engineering, U.C.D., both members of the Portmarnock Club.

At Saturday night's dinner to the competitors in the West of Ireland championship at Rosses Point, given by the captain, Dr. Charles McCarthy, Professor Purcell mentioned that after the war the Co. Sligo Club would figure in a big tournament. He said nothing more. Afterwards I got the details from Professor Purcell said that he had been discussing the ambitious project with Dr. Sherlock. They are certain that when the time comes the money will be forthcoming. To quote Professor Purcell: "We should have no difficulty in obtaining funds. Our idea is to bring in so-and-so (he mentioned the name of the concern), and, needless to say, the Irish Tourist Board will have to come into the picture also. We plan to run four huge tournaments that will bring to Ireland all the greatest golfers of the world, starting at the Royal Co. Down Club, Newcastle; then to the Royal Portrush, back to Rosses Point, Sligo; thence to Killarney, and from Killarney back to Portmarnock, the scene of the open championship of Ireland, for the great final. We hope to be able to put up £5,000, not dollars, mind you, in prize money for each of the tournaments."

The Professor added that the tournaments would be so arranged that visitors from all over the globe would have time to explore every beauty spot on the circle mapped out and to visit all our best courses, and that transport would be so arranged that the whole enterprise would run like clockwork.

"Our desire," said Professor Purcell, "is to reveal to golfers all over the world the charms of our Irish seaside links, our best inland courses, and the wondrous beauty of our country from the scenic and tourist viewpoints."

Clothing Shortage Affects Schools

The School Attendance Committee of the Dublin Corporation has been unable to enforce the School Attendance Act in many cases because the children have no boots or proper clothes. These children's parents, an Irish Times reporter was told, had to exist on unemployment benefit, unemployment assistance, and widows' and orphans' pensions, and were not in a position to clothe their children. The problem, it was stated, was becoming more difficult, and the Government should make provision for the children so that their education would be assured, or, alternatively, provision for them would have to be included in the rates. At the moment the principal reason for the absence of many children from school was the inability of their mothers to adequately dress them.

The School Attendance Committee have communicated with the Minister for Education, Mr. T. Derrig, drawing his attention to the problem.

Fatal Accident at Howth

John McEntee (21), Clanbrassil street, Dublin, was fatally injured when he fell from a cliff at the Hill of Howth yesterday evening. He was accompanied by another youth, Brendan O'Brien, and was going down a gradient at a place known as the Brandy Banks in search of gulls' nests when he lost his foothold, overbalanced and fell to the bottom of the cliffs. Gardai and Red Cross workers in a boat subsequently recovered the body.

B.S.A. Profits Rise

THE full report of the Birmingham Small Arms Co. shows that profits in the year to July 31st, 1943, totalled £744,219, against £719,758 in the previous year. Provision for income tax is again £400,000. As already announced, the Ordinary dividend for the year is again 7½ per cent.

Changes in the balance sheet include a reduction in trade creditors (including taxation and contingencies) from £4,061,089 to £3,154,700, and on the other side, in debtors from £1,362,886 to £828,235. Stock is down by about £120,000 to £1,703,339. The Ordinary units are quoted at 24s. 3d., at which they give the useful yield of 6¼ per cent.

RAILS IDLE

British Railway Stocks have been in the doldrums. This is quite in accord with precedent, for invariably during the months which lie between dividend seasons all interest goes out of this market. The speculative activity which precedes dividend declarations vanishes, there are no buyers, and prices are left to wilt under the influence of sporadic sales which come from deceased estates and other causes.

Prices have probably not yet reached their nadir for this period of idleness; but the one thing that is evident is that these are the months in which purchases should be made rather than wait for the higher prices which inevitably will be seen when the half-yearly dividend season again arrives. Yields are high, and are assured for some years to come.

GOOD YIELDS

In these days of income tax at 10/- in the £, when leading industrial shares only yield a net income of about 2 p.c. or less, selections made from the many thousands of smaller companies which offer a greater income, although with a less free market, are worth consideration. Here is a selection of five, each of which has succeeded in maintaining its position through the war years.

James Barnes, Ltd. — Capital £100,000; four years' dividends of 20 p.c.; price of 2/- shares 5/6; yield £7 5/5 p.c. This Manchester company makes ladies' overalls and bags for packing, etc.

Gascoignes (Reading), Ltd.—Capital £75,000; three years' dividend of 12½ p.c., two years at 15 p.c., and one year (1943) at 20 p.c.; price of 2/- shares 6/3. Yield on 20 p.c. basis £6 8/- p.c. They are dairy engineers and manufacturers of milking machines.

Bulmer and Lumb, Ltd. — Capital £115,000; three years' dividends at 10 p.c.; price of 4/- shares 7/3; yield £5 10/4 p.c.

Scottish Stamping and Engineering Co., Ltd.—Capital £120,000; price of 2/- shares 3/3; four years' dividends at 10 p.c.; yield £6 3/1 p.c.

Ben Hall and Son, Ltd.—Capital £140,000; four years' dividends at 20 p.c.; price of 4/- shares 12/6; yield £6 8/- p.c. They are woollen manufacturers.

Three of these companies—Bulmer and Lumb, Gascoignes, and Ben Hall—have all their capital in Ordinary shares, with no prior charges. They are the incorporation of old-established business, and all have been registered since 1937.

Market Holidays

BUSINESS will be resumed on the London and Dublin Stock Exchanges to-morrow (Tuesday) morning. They have been closed since last Thursday evening.

Wall Street Closes Irregular

NEW YORK, Saturday.—The opening trend on the Stock Exchange was irregular and trading was quiet. Investment buying propped many favourites although small losses for the leaders were plentiful. Mixed tendencies prevailed towards the close, with out-of-town orders accounting for the pick-up in activity. Scattered Rails, Rubbers, Motors and Specialities did fairly well, but the market closed irregular. The turnover of 365,000 shares comprised 693 issues, of which 324 advanced, 172 declined and 197 remained unchanged.

Irish Produce at Manchester

There was more activity in most departments of the Manchester Provision Market during the past week, with traders operating freely to cover their requirements over the holiday break. Bacon continues very firm.

There has been some speeding up in deliveries of the present allocation of eggs, which consist mainly of Eire, Northern Irish and home produced, which are increasing seasonally. Prices to retailers, Category 1, 17/3; Category 2, 14/9 per 120. At the high prices ruling in Eire for beef, mutton and lamb, it is stated that it does not pay the farmers to ship it to Britain. Therefore, very little is arriving in Manchester area. Choice heifers have made as much as 71/- per cwt. in Eire, and spring lambs £4 each. A substantial increase was reported in supplies of pigs at the collecting centre under the Government control scheme, with quality well maintained The animals were allocated mainly for bacon purposes at control prices.

Arrivals of salmon were insufficient for requirements. The supplies consisted mostly of Eire fish and smaller lots of Northern Irish. As the season advances, however, larger marketings are anticipated. A consignment of dead poultry from Eire was received in Manchester on Thursday. Fowls formed the bulk of the arrivals. There was a good trade passing at full official prices. Salmon 4/9 per lb., fowls 1/9 lb. wholesale control prices.

Uninteresting Week on Dublin Exchange

MARKETS dragged along in rather uninteresting fashion on the Dublin Stock Exchange during the past week. In view of the Easter Holiday weekend trading was held in check, and scattered liquidation caused a little irregularity in price movements. The coal situation did not help market conditions, for intending investors feel that the outlook for the railways, the Alliance Gas Company and all other concerns which are large consumers of coal is becoming more serious. Until the outlook becomes clearer, we cannot hope for any marked recovery in business.

COMING BUDGET

The Revenue figures for the past year were most heartening, and under normal conditions would have had a good effect in financial circles. The huge yields from income tax was in no small way due to the excellent trading conditions enjoyed by most companies during the year. Despite the difficulties of the times, the feeling is that the income under this heading during the coming year should be well up to expectations. Although children's allowances will require a large sum of money, it is felt that the Minister for Finance will make no great change in taxation in the coming Budget.

The Pim Bros., Ltd., report, which was awaited with such interest, caused a good deal of disappointment in many quarters. Many people had expected that some payment on account of the Preference dividend arrears would be made this time. The profit for the year was only slightly higher at £15,996. The report states that, before the payment of any dividends can be resumed, a reconstruction scheme must be approved of by the shareholders. It is quite possible that the Chairman will have more to say on this point at to-morrow's general meeting. It is to be hoped that the shareholders will be given the fullest information at the earliest moment.

HOSIERY SHARES

Manufacturers of hosiery and kindred goods are enjoying good trading conditions. In this category Sunbeam Wolsey Ordinary shares at the present price of 57s. look very attractive. This company has a sound financial record and is well managed. Even before the war it was able to cope with foreign competition successfully. Despite the difficulties caused by the war, the earning capacity has been more than well maintained, and for several years past Ordinary shareholders have received a dividend of 12½ per cent. They are a first-class industrial holding, and the post-war prospects are considered excellent.

The curtailment in the tramway services may, it is felt, affect the cinemas, while the restriction in the use of electricity is another serious problem facing these companies. Nevertheless, Irish Cinema 6 per cent. Preference shares, now hovering around 21s., do not look overvalued, and they should well pay for their keep.

A feature was the steady buying of Pye (Ireland) Ordinary shares at 8s. 3d. As we pointed out recently, this company's war-time prospects are rather uncertain owing to the scarcity of raw materials, but it should do well when normal conditions return.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"DISTORTED CREEDS"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—The above subject seems to have awakened some interest among readers of the Irish Times. It is not surprising that many people are discovering "Distorted Creeds" in the world to-day, for a time of crisis brings deficiencies only too plainly into prominence.

The Christian Faith, in one sense, is so simple that any child can understand it that is able to read. It consists of love to Christ, for what He has done and suffered for us.

If the simplicity of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus was really received and followed by the Churches they would know and tell the people that where Christ is "reckoned among the transgressors . . . . let him . . . that hath no sword sell his garment and buy one," which explains the state of the world in a few words.

That is, where Christ or Christianity is departed from in countries where it was formerly professed, war or some other affliction is likely to follow in fulfilment of the above quotation from Luke 22, 35-37.—Yours, etc.,

J. S. SWITZER.

Ballywaltrim, Co. Wicklow,
April 8th, 1944.

"WOMEN ON THE FARM"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—May a humble semi-unemployed basement dweller be allowed to express his opinion about women on the farms and on the bogs? There must be thousands of men in cities and towns who would like to work in the country — men with young children, like myself, men who cannot get a job, or, like myself, trying to eke out an existence, with the wife out "charring." We would like a man's job on the farm or on the bog. Farmers are crying out for men, and Mr. de Valera is crying for more production of fuel and foodstuffs, but still we city workers cannot get a chance. If I answer an advertisement for farm worker, gardener, or bog worker — and these generally stipulate that one must be experienced—I get no replies when I say I have no experience; and yet a text book on farming, etc., common sense and direction will give any average man a capacity to give service, if he is willing. The Government's policy of wooden huts for men only would seem to indicate that they do not believe in turf as a permanent form of fuel. The men working on the bogs are evidently going to be sacked the moment that coal can be got from abroad. There is no plan to take the unemployed and their families out of our overcrowded cities and towns. There is no help for any Dublin family to get a job with a farmer or on a bog, no advance of cost of removal to the country. Ignorant people on public Boards throughout the country have commented on the unemployed in the towns not working for farmers, who are distracted looking for men. It is a pity we have no "Employment Exchange" to help workers to find employment in the country. The "Unemployment Exchange" does nothing to solve the problem. Miss Louie Bennett is to be thanked, and the Irish Times also, for bringing attention to the question of work for women on the farm.—Yours, etc.,

"BACK TO THE LAND."

Dublin, April 7th, 1944.

University Education

Educational reform is in the air. War, which calls for sacrifice from every individual citizen, brings into prominence also the rights of every citizen to a fair share of the advantages of life. Nobody can be called forward to receive kicks without feeling that he is entitled to his proportion of the halfpence. It has been true, and it always will be true, that social and financial distinctions are based, to a very great extent, on education; and consequently every citizen of a democratic State must feel that he has a right to the fullest educational opportunity. For the future it must be a principle of democracy that education shall be distributed according to ability, and not according to wealth. This idea is at the root of a great part of the new British Education Bill, which deals with elementary and secondary education; and it underlies the increasing demand for a broadening of university education also. Upon one point almost all the advocates of reform in Britain are agreed: after the war there must be an immediate increase, probably of as much as one-half, in the number of students attending universities. These additional students, one must surmise, will come in the main from the poorer families. They will be young men and women who have the ability to profit by university education, but who would be unable to afford it under the present system; and their way will have to be paid, by means of scholarships and grants adequate not only to meet their fees and bare living expenses, but also to enable them to take their part in the social and society life that is so important an element of a university training. The advantages of the residential university are generally recognised; so there will be an attempt to create more residential colleges and students' unions. More also will be expected of the staff; for there is a demand at once for more personal supervision of studies and for a greater concentration upon pure research, dissociated from teaching. Three things will be required immediately then: greatly increased staffs, numerous new buildings, and valuable scholarships. All of these call for money; and the money can come only from one source—State funds.

All these facts, to a greater or less extent, must carry weight also in any consideration of the future of Irish universities. The proportion of students to the total population is higher than in Britain—considerably higher than in England and Wales; and probably no great immediate increase need be expected. On the other hand, opportunities must be provided for pupils of ability to have the benefit of university, as well as secondary, education. Again, if the universities are to play their part in research—that is, in creative, as well as in distributive, scholarship, and at the same time to make their teaching more personal and more vital—staffs must be increased; and administrative functions, which can be only a burden on scholars, must be removed to the shoulders of special officers. Residential accommodation, too, must be increased and improved. For all these purposes only the State can provide the money. Upon what terms will it be provided? It may be decided to make substantial grants to universities—"Trinity" as well as "National"—and have the funds administered by a Universities' Advisory Council, mainly composed, as in England, of university members, not of civil servants. Any wholesale reorganisation may be avoided. The present system, it can be argued, works reasonably well. To devise another would be difficult and unnecessary. Yet we cannot believe that this is the way by which most progress can be made. Much of the logic seems to be in favour of the establishment of the Cork and Galway colleges as independent institutions and the co-ordination of the two Dublin colleges. The difficulties are not so great. Oxford and Cambridge cater for all religions, without friction and without suggestions of proselytism on any side. Could not a new University of Dublin do the same? The two component colleges at College Green and Earlsfort terrace could remain, organised independently after the fashion of Oxford colleges; while above the two a University Council, representing both interests, would reign supreme over purely academic matters. That would be a courageous and, we believe, a real solution to a schism that can only be harmful to Irish life.

"Swat That Fly"

Spring has come; the flies are returning from whatever mysterious Mecca they go to in the winter-time; and already many a young man's fancy turns lightly to the ancient and honourable sport of fly-swatting. These are the days in which the first tentative practice swings with the whisk are made, in which the first fly of the season may be "bagged" as he zooms in through the open window. "Every man his own Nimrod" is the motto for the summer months. Techniques, of course, will vary. One may leave out of consideration the mere dilettante fly-swatter, who aims no higher than to crush his fly with a rolled-up newspaper as it reposes on the chimney-piece, or crawls happily down the window-pane; no swatter worthy of the name will use such direct methods against a sitting insect. The legitimate schools are three in number. In the first, one may group those who favour the wire whisk, with which they pick off their prey while on the wing. A good eye, a free forearm movement, and a strong follow-through are the main requisites for one who would be expert in this, the most popular branch of the summer's great indoor sport. Healthy exercise and enjoyment are guaranteed, and a racket technique which may be applied directly to tennis is developed. The second school is that of the more advanced swatters, who catch the fly with a naked hand; and upon the subtleties of these sportsmen one could write a volume. Some approach the fly from in front, some from behind; some steal up very slowly, some make a single swift grab; some, the virtuosi of the art, snatch their prey, by a lightning collaboration of hand and eye, in mid-air. Finally there is that small, but ardent, group of enthusiasts that prefers to shoot at the sitting fly from a distance of several yards, with a rubber band stretched upon the thumb. No huge "bags" fall to these hunters; failure is frequent and success rare; but to the followers of every other code they feel as the Brahmin to the casteless sweeper. For all alike, however, the re-opening of the season is a joyous event. May they have a prosperous season; may many a fly and bluebottle fall to them, until the winter comes to drop the curtain on the hunter in the drawing-room.

EASTER WEEK BROADCASTS

"It is, perhaps, too much to say that but for Clarke there would never have been a rising in Dublin, but certainly it would have been a very different rising, and might have influenced the life of the country in another way." Such is Donagh MacDonagh's verdict on Tom Clarke, the eldest signatory of the Proclamation of 1916, in a broadcast talk delivered last night from Radio Eireann. This broadcast was the first of a series, which will be continued throughout the week, on the various signatories. To-night's talk, by Sean MacDiarmada, will be at 8.15 o'clock.

EVIL FORCES WILL OPPOSE GOOD

It did not need much imagination to realise that when peace returned, and men set out to re-build the shattered world, the powers of evil would array themselves to oppose the good, said the Most Rev. Dr. Barton, Archbishop of Dublin, preaching in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday.

All the forces which had crucified Christ, he said, again would fight against God's methods of saving the world. Jealousy, pride, self-interest, bigotry, injustice, greed—all these would try once more to crucify Christ.

In recent years scholarship had made it clear that the Easter stories, although not committed to paper, perhaps, for some years, were released in the words of eye-witnesses spoken immediately after the events took place.

CRUISKEENLAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

READING, not with distaste, Mr. Raymond McGrath's article in "Irish Art" on the prefabricated house, it occurs to me to point out that houses traditionally rise from ground-level to the sky only because our primal forebears were not interested in excavation. Yet there is no good reason why a house should be built up rather than sunk. The advantages the conventional house is so supposed to have in respect of light and fresh air can be largely discounted in these days of air-conditioning and ubiquitous E.S.B. Here are a few things in favour of the downward house.

1. Most of the animals live underground and apparently find the situation healthy, warm and hygienic.

2. At least three-quarters of the over-ground house is not used during daylight hours and might as well be underground so far as light is concerned; and the entire first floor of the underground house, being glass-roofed, will be day-lit.

3. Indoor heating will be only a fraction of present costs because the 'house' will have no outside and the householder will no longer have to submit to acute interior discomforts because his house is designed primarily to present a pleasing exterior to the eye of a lot of strangers who pass in the street.

5. There will be no 'streets.'

6. Valuable sub-soils will be made available for agriculture.

In fairness, however, I must set down a few of the drawbacks that must be considered:

1. No back-door.
2. Danger of flooding.
3. Danger of astronomy becoming an obsession with all householders.
4. Danger to inebriates in manipulating a horizontal hall-door.

And add to those, if you want to be funny, the danger of people dropping in on you at all hours.

If you reflect, however, you will see that most of the disadvantages of the underground house are bound up with the householder's persistence in the old habit of going "out"—that is, up, and out along the crust of the earth. His pretexts for this are rarely very sound and if the time is about nine o'clock at night, they are indefensible. Consider a clerk living in a small basement flat on the outskirts of London. He gets up so early that he does so in darkness nearly all the year round. He rushes up and out and after a few seconds on the surface, he has disappeared into the bowels of the earth to get a train to town. His office, even if not a basement, will be dark and sepulchral. He goes home by tube and is soon asleep in his underground bed. He has never really been up or out at all, and if private subterranean accommodation roads could be built from underground houses to tubes and underground traffic arteries of one kind and another, an entire city could be permanently submerged, with no worse effects than an owl-eyed and untanned citizenry.

A lot of nonsense is talked about the sun. Get plenty of fresh air and sunlight, a doctor will tell you. Observe the effect of fresh air and sunlight on flowers. Almost under your eyes they are forced to a precocious bloom, now they are already withered and crumbling to dust. The sun blasts the tender slow cycle of growth, forces the human plant as it will rhubarb under a glass. The sun kills because its direct energy, undiluted and untransformed, cannot indefinitely be sustained by any form of life. The corrosive light that comes from radium abounds also in sunlight. Avoid the sun, reader. Better the genial battery that has ever digested and stored the sunlight—the earth. Go into the earth, burrow into your progenitrix, live among your travelled and returned predecessors, lie on top of your descendents.

We who are Irish come from the earth of Ireland and to it we will one day return. I am not so sure that we have not taken a grave risk by coming up at all. (And think of the inconvenience of getting rid forever of this dreary mess known as 'the weather').

FILM NOTES

By Our Cinema Correspondent.

MR. BUSBY BERKELEY has devoted a great many years of his life to the pursuit of directing monster musical films. His latest technicolour opus, The Girls He Left Behind (Savoy) has all his old magnificence of touch, but surely never before in the history of the screen has so meagre a gem been given so florid a setting. When the film reaches a certain stage of its development the producers gallantly decide that there has been a brain-befogging stretch of unbroken spectacle, and they try for all they are worth to introduce a soupçon of plot. The main theme of the picture, having been brought precariously into the world, thrives spasmodically for about half an hour before its head disappears for the last time beneath the hectic waters of a technicolour finale on an almost indecently spectacular scale. The large cast fight nobly against the threadbare nature of their material, and at times they succeed in making the bare bones of the story sparkle. Alice Faye, Twentieth Century-Fox's Leading Lady No. 2, does a little attractive singing and a large amount of synthetic love-making; Carmen Miranda, the uncrowned queen of hip-swaying volubility, rolls her amusingly outrageous eyes; Charlotte Greenwood and E. E. Horton provide their customary interludes of marital wise-cracking. The film's final sequence is most originally presented, and suggests that Mr. Busby has attempted to combine the directorial techniques of Messrs. Walt Disney and Orson Welles. Strangely enough, "The Girls He Left Behind" is, for the most part, exceedingly good entertainment.

The supporting "March of Time" deals with neutral Portugal, and is unusually interesting, although I found the American commentary more than a little provocative. Mr. Gordon Spicer, now an established favourite at the Savoy, plays a pleasant selection of tunes for the season.

Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland combine their undoubted talents in Girl Crazy (Adelphi). It is not the best thing they have done together, but it is, in places, a most pleasant picture. The story tells how Rooney is sent by his father to Coolyville College in the Wild West, and saves the institution from ruin by putting on an annual rodeo with hundreds of beautiful girls. It should be borne in mind that this kind of thing does not seem preposterous to Americans. Mickey and Judy are at their best in the comic love-making interludes; the musical routines are over-prolonged and much too noisy. Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra play Gershwin melodies, and the elaborate "I Got Rhythm" finale is under the direction of Mr. Busby Berkeley.

Adventures of a Rookie (Royal) is so very much better than the title would lead one to expect that one feels disposed to laud it. Allan Brown and William Carney, two new comedians, carry most of the fun on their shoulders.

I have not yet had an opportunity to pay a return visit to Disney's Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (Astor), but I hope to remedy this unavoidable sin of omission in the course of the present week. Ouida's Under Two Flags is back in the Carlton, and is proving a great attraction. It was with considerable satisfaction that I recognised the plot as a Foreign Legion "re-hash" of the time-honoured story of King David and Uriah the Hittite. Johnny Eager (Green) was easily the best crime thriller of 1942. Van Heflin, alas, has never since been seen to equal advantage. The Grand Central are showing a re-issue of Sporting Blood, which is all about Robert Young, Maureen O'Sullivan and horse-racing.

ABBEY THEATRE
EASTER WEEK PLAY

IN "Lost Light," through the medium of verse whose lines glow to the telling of a moving story, Roibeard O Farachain gives us the play of Easter Week, 1916, for which we have had to wait so long. Never halting his action by dwelling upon lines for the lines' sake, but twining his verse always into the swift, nervous language of the theatre, he makes, in short space, a distinguished contribution to the Abbey stage.

The story is simple in its elements, yet it evokes the whole background of patriotic memory. The "Fenian Dead" of Pearse, and all those of their kind who went before them, crowd in to change the sorrow of a mother who felt for a while that her son had disgraced his family by dying with the rebels. We see her when, with his bewildered father, a prominent Judge of the time, she has just come, distraught, from the boy's funeral.

It is a moment of overturning in their lives, and into it comes the girl who is her son's widow with a message from him. It is an explanation of why he had chosen to die upon the side against which his father's and mother's whole lives have been a protest, with their different loyalty and their other son now fighting in Flanders. It was because of the influence of a Fenian uncle, and, as the girl tells her this, a flood of girlhood memories breaks over the unhappy mother.

She, too, had known that influence once, and, although she had steeled her heart against it, she can feel it once more. She understands now why her son has died and is comforted. And, as the curtain falls on "Lost Light," we realise that the whole story of Easter Week, 1916, has been told in this one character. It makes a fine part, which was played both with power and restraint by Ria Mooney.

Excellent supporting performances were given by M. J. Dolan as the father, and by Eithne Dunne as the son's widow, while two smaller parts were capably filled by Denis O'Dea and May Craig.

"The Shadow of a Gunman" would not seem to have lost any of its appeal, although some of its lines have worn down a good deal with the years. It still gives F. J. McCormack his finest humorous part in what is one of O'Casey's most finished characters.

"LILAC TIME" AT THE GAIETY

The production of "Lilac Time," the popular three-act play, by the Rathmines and Rathgar Musical Society, which opened at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, on Saturday last, is well up to the highest standard of a society that has done many big things in its thirty-one years' existence. It is really marvellous that, with the inability to secure costumes and other necessaries from the other side, the producer, Stanley Illsley, has been able to present such a brilliant spectacle.

The performance on Saturday night was quite good, and, after this preliminary canter, it should be a very attractive show this week. There is a good team of principals, headed by Patrick Kirwan, who fits into the part of Schubert like a glove. It was gratifying to hear him in such good voice, especially in some of the lovely melodies in the second act. Jack O'Connor, "the other Franz," played the part easily, his singing of the song, "Thine is my heart," being a fine effort. J. Hubert Brown (as the painter, von Schwind), R. J. Tierney (the draughtsman, Kappel), and Andrew Leahy (who made a good début as the opera singer, Vogl) were a capable team in support. A. E. Glynn, as the Glassmaker, Christian Veit, had another of those character studies in which he revels. He had a good partner in Eileen Furlong as Mrs. Veit. P. J. Henry made great play in the rôle of the detective, Novotny. Maria Viani was vivacious and appealing as Lili, the daughter of the Glassmaker. Her acting was natural and her singing full of charm, though an occasional note on top was a little off. Maureen Harold and Kathleen Maher played up to her well as the other sisters, Tili and Wili. As Marini, the temperamental Ballerina, Mida O'Brien added another to her long list of successes with the Society. Others who filled smaller parts splendidly were Eileen Knowles (Mrs. Grimm), Hilda White (Mrs. Weber), Reg. Peters, Hubert O'Connor, W. G. J. Thornhill and Chris. F. Bruton.

Mr. T. H. Weaving was the conductor.

T.C.D. NOTES

From Our Correspondent

GROUPS of important looking men could be observed last Wednesday afternoon in the Front square. They were members of the headmasters' conference, which was held last week in the congenial atmosphere of St. Columba's College at Rathfarnham, where most headmasters of the Protestant Irish secondary schools met as guests of the Warden, the Rev. C. W. Sowby.

The Board of Trinity College entertained the headmasters to an "At Home" in the Common Room. This function was symbolic of the close bond which exists between Irish secondary schools and this University, and any such gathering is to be welcomed, as it affords an excellent opportunity of establishing contacts and furthering an exchange of ideas between the leading personalities of Irish university and secondary school life.

Many headmasters are alumni of this University, and they must have been glad to re-establish contact with their alma mater. It is a pity, however, that most students had departed from College, as many Freshmen might have had their first opportunity to meet their formerly dreaded "heads" without concern and without the pangs of a bad conscience.

As is usual at Easter, College is calm and deserted. Apart from a few over-zealous enthusiasts who already have returned for their forthcoming term Honour and Pass examinations, the great problem which occupies the minds of most students in residence is Scholarship. Even the most casual observer can easily detect the "Schol." candidate by the eagerness with which he enters the Reading Room at ten o'clock in the morning, and by that rather tired look with which he leaves it at ten o'clock at night after an all-day struggle with that colossus, the Schol. course, which hardly is interrupted for his meals.

On Commons, in the Co-op., in the conversation rooms of the major societies, during the brief intervals when cigarettes are smoked on the Reading Room steps, "Schol." is discussed by the unfortunate candidates, of whom there are 43 this year, and who are fairly equally proportioned between three Senior years. Only one student, however, is attempting the most difficult and enterprising task of going up for "Schol." in his first year in College.

PRO-CATHEDRAL

The Lord Mayor, Alderman M. O'Sullivan, with the members of Dublin Corporation, attended High Mass in state in the Pro-Cathedral, Dublin, yesterday.

The Archbishop of Dublin, the Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid, presided, and the chaplain to the Lord Mayor was the Rev. J. Union, C.C. The celebrant of the Mass was the Rev. A. Griffith, C.C. The sacred music was rendered by the Palestrina choir, under the direction of Dr. Vincent O'Brien.

SECONDARY TEACHERS' CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Association of Secondary Teachers opens at University College, Cork, to-morrow at 12 o'clock. The speakers at the public session include the President (Mr. C. L. Dillon), the Lord Mayor of Cork, Professor J. J. McHenry, Mr. T. O'Donoghue (trustee) and Mr. O. P. Ward. The advertisement of the opening of the convention, which appeared in our issue of last Saturday, inadvertently omitted the name of the Association.

1916 COMMEMORATION

A short ceremony yesterday at the graves in Arbour Hill Prison of men who were executed in 1916, commemorated the Easter Week rising.

Mr. de Valera, on behalf of the National Executive of the Fianna Fail Party, laid a wreath on the graves, after a decade of the Rosary had been led by Senator Margaret Pearse. A firing party, made up of men who had fought in 1916, fired a salute over the plot, and the "Last Post" was sounded. Senator M. Stafford, one of the oldest survivors, raised the flag while the "Reveille" was sounded. Mr. Joseph O'Connor was in charge of the arrangements.

The customary Easter commemoration ceremonies took place in Cork.

FUNERAL
REV. T. H. GOING, M.A.

The funeral of the Rev. Thomas Hardinge Going, M.A., Cantab., Rector of Corley, Coventry, and only brother of Canon Going, Dunmore East, took place on March 27th, at Corley Church. The Bishop of Coventry conducted the Service, which was attended by the Provost and neighbouring clergy. The chief mourners were Mrs. T. H. Going (widow), Miss Mary Going (daughter), Dr. Charles Going (eldest son), Miss M. H. Going and Mrs. J. D. Alexander (cousins), Professor A. Clark-Kennedy (brother-in-law). His second son, Alexander, could not be present owing to absence abroad. The little Norman church was filled with his parishioners, by whom he was deeply loved.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
Sunday Night.

TOWNS in Co. Kent, which suffered considerably in the raids, have completed comprehensive plans for post-war reconstruction. Canterbury has purchased a seven-acre site for an up-to-date cattle market, and is to erect a ring road to prevent traffic congestion, and an overhead by-pass to eliminate the railway level-crossing in the city. Very large areas have been ear-marked for new housing, and five hundred houses within two years of the end of the war is the target. The City Council has appointed Dr. Charles Holden, F.R.I.B.A.—architect of the great new London University building in Russell square, which is designed to last from five to six hundred years—to undertake, in collaboration with the City Surveyor, the work of preparing the town-planning scheme for the

PHŒNIX PARK SURPRISES

FACING a card which included two races for two-year-olds and two maiden events, the punter had a lot of problems to solve at the opening of the Phœnix Park season on Saturday, but he had a very hard time of it, indeed, for only one favourite turned up in the course of the afternoon. The first three races were all won by outsiders, but he had a certain amount of relief in the remaining four events.

The Park seems to be a fortunate course for Mr. Joseph McGrath, and on this occasion his colours were first past the post on two occasions, Brownstown winning the Rank Cup and Raffin the Athboy Handicap Plate. The market for the Rank Cup was very open, King of the Jungle and Hasty Earl sharing favouritism at 5 to 1. There was little interest in Brownstown, but always well placed, he took the lead between the last two jumps, to hold his advantage from King of the Jungle. Great Patrick made most of the running, with Charles's Wain and Keep Faith well in the van. When King of the Jungle moved up he looked to have a good chance, but Brownstown, lying fourth, coming to the second last, shot into the lead, and could not be caught.

Redbay was a strong favourite for the Greer Two-year-old Plate, but although Sir Thomas Dixon's colt had every chance in the running he just failed in the closing stages. There was little to choose between half a dozen for most of the journey, but Redbay, on the rails, was slightly in front. At the junction of the courses, however, Sartorial, in the centre, went in front, and just resisted a challenge by Charisma, less than half a length covering the first three.

An objection to the winner for bumping was overruled.

TWENTY-FIVE MILES' CYCLING HANDICAP

The twenty-five miles competitor-paced handicap, which is usually the opening event of the road racing season in Dublin, was held yesterday on an out-and-home course on the Navan road, the customary course in the Phœnix Park not being available. Twenty-one riders took part, and those of them who were still in the running were in a group when the finish was approached. Half-a-dozen of them flashed across the line in a bunch, and it was only by a matter of inches that Victor Lyons (Eagle) beat his clubman, G. Dunne. T. McGovern (Harp) was third, and B. S. O'Reilly (St. Vincent's) fourth. The winner's actual time was 60 mins. 40 secs. In the finishing bunch was A. Christie (Round Tower), and as he was giving those named a start he did best time (60 mins. 10 secs.).

Of course! How on earth do you clean your false teeth? Haven't you heard about 'Steradent'?

Well, I've seen it advertised ...

Watch! You add this much to half a tumbler of warm water and stir ...

And then what?

Then you place them in the solution overnight or while you dress. That's the way to keep false teeth perfectly clean.

Can I get some to-morrow?

Yes—at any chemist.

Rank Double at Fairyhouse?

MISS PAGET'S Golden Jack, winner of the corresponding race twelve months ago, was struck out of the Irish Grand National yesterday morning, which was not altogether surprising, in view of his loss of form.

To-day's race at Fairyhouse will lose little in interest as a result of this last-minute defection, and a memorable race is in prospect, with Prince Regent and Prince Blackthorn likely to figure in the leading rôles. Mr. J. V. Rank in Prince Regent owns a 'chaser of exceptional merit, and this brilliant son of My Prince is confidently expected to repeat his triumph of two years ago.

Two younger horses in Prince Blackthorn and Tiverton will have plenty of support, and, if a surprise is forthcoming, it may be from the light-weight, Knight's Crest; but a decided preference is for the chance of Prince Regent, with Prince Blackthorn and Tiverton taken as the pick of the others.

It is not improbable that Mr. Rank will bring off a double event by winning the Maiden 'Chase with Red Branch. Selections:—

Percy Maynard Memorial Cup—Culmullen.
Ward Union Hunt Cup—Copperquid.
Irish Grand National—Prince Regent (win); Prince Blackthorn and Tiverton (places).
Joseph O'Reilly Cup—Bensford or Dromina.
Maiden Plate—Red Branch or Prince Jack.
Dunboyne 'Chase—Desmond Morgan.
Fairyhouse 'Chase—My Richard, if absent Yung Yat.

Tote Double on Third and Fifth Races.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism—however mild your symptoms—exacts a merciless toll in pain and expense if not checked in time. Poisons and impurities in your system are usually the cause of rheumatic disorders. To get rid of these poisons, doctors recommend the drinking of mineral spa waters. But a visit to a spa involves time and expense that many people simply cannot afford these days.

'Alkia' Saltrates may be described as a spa treatment in your own home. It contains the essential curative qualities of seven world-famous springs and has the same beneficial effect on the system at a fraction of the cost and without the inconvenience of travelling to an actual spa. A teaspoonful of 'Alkia' Saltrates in warm water before breakfast each morning soon relieves pain. Taken regularly, this pleasant, effervescent drink dissolves impurities in the blood-stream and greatly assists the kidneys to eliminate them from the system, thus helping to prevent recurring attacks of rheumatism.

A bottle of 'Alkia' Saltrates costs 3/6. Get one from your chemist to-day and begin your spa treatment to-morrow morning.

Betting Deplored At G.A.A. Matches

The President (Mr. Seumas Gairneir), at the annual congress of the G.A.As at the City Hall yesterday, in the course of his address, deplored the practice of betting and the encroachment of spectators on playing pitches. On one occasion the Central Council had to take stern action, and it would continue to do so to prevent the recurrence of such regrettable scenes.

He appealed to members of the Gaelic Athletic Association to join the emergency services, or, alternatively, to engage in the vital work of food and fuel production. He stressed the Association's unqualified support of the stand taken on the question of neutrality.

The position of Gaelic games in the Army, the big issue of last year's congress, was raised by Mr. M. Kehoe, Chairman, Leinster Council, and it was indicated that Liputenant-General McKenna, Chief of Staff, was prepared to meet them to discuss the problem.

The scenes in front of the Hogan stand at Croke Park on the occasion of big matches were deplored by delegates. It was stated that when 70,000 people had crowded out the grounds, many who had travelled from different parts of Ireland were left outside. Reconstruction was necessary immediately. It was pointed out by Mr. Sean Ryan that this was impracticable owing to the restrictions on building.

The question of how ground at the rear of Croke Park had been granted to Belvedere College, which fostered foreign games, was raised by another delegate, and Mr. Ryan pointed out that the ground was leased to the College before Croke Park was reconstructed.

GAME IN ERITAIN

British delegates stressed the fact that thousands of young men had left the country, but there were only 23 clubs in Britain, and there was an adverse balance of £30. Apparently the G.A.A. did not merit their attention. These men could not hope to remain in Britain unaffected and unaltered by their residence there. Many of the young men who went to Britain lost all interest in their own games.

LOUTH BEAT FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

(By PAT'O.)

LOUTH ..... 3 Goals, 4 Points (13)
ROSCOMMON ..... 10 Points

Three surprising goals by Kelly, of Louth, in the first half left Roscommon with too much to do at Croke Park, when the champions went all out for victory near the end. It was an uneven Louth football, Louth's better anticipation in the first half gave clever forwards good openings. They brought winning goals.

Corr opened for Louth, and McDermott balanced, but the Leinster champions, using the wind well, went into the lead (Halpin), and were well clear when Kelly goaled. This new Louth left-winger again burst through and beat Keegan for Louth's second goal. Roscommon did well for a session; Phelim Murray had two good points, and Keenan one, but Roscommon's defence was all astray when Kelly swerved in for a third goal. Half-time—Louth 3 goals, 3 points, Roscommon 4 points.

Lynch and Keenan, with points, promised a strong Roscommon finish, and Beasty scored another. Halpin's screw-kick from a difficult angle again gave Louth a two goals lead. Roscommon played a vigorous last quarter, E. Boyle saved Louth more than once, but Roscommon's point register crept up—Keenan (2-, Carlos (3)—put them within a goal of the leaders. Louth's backs held out, despite desperate Roscommon pressure in a fast finish.

Result:—Curragh Command 1 gl., 5 pts., Sean McDermotts 1 gl. 4 pts.

REINSTATEMENT REFUSED.

By 8 votes to 7, the Central Council refused to reinstate the Cavan players suspended after last year's all-Ireland series. A number of players who had broken the "ban" rules were reinstated by the Leinster Council.

Belvedere and U.C.D. Advance in Rugby Cup

OLD BELVEDERE, holders, and U.C.D. qualified for the semi-finals of the Senior Cup, where they meet Wanderers and Clontarf respectively, by defeating Curragh Command and Blackrock College at Lansdowne road on Saturday.

OLD BELVEDERE ..... 26
CURRAGH COMMAND ... 9

Curragh Command's pretensions to the Cup got an early knock when Belvedere scored a very lucky try, which was converted, in the first few minutes, and this proved the forerunner to a spate of further scoring by Belvedere, who ran up 15 points before half-time, eventually winning by two goals, a drop goal and four tries to a goal and a try.

Tries by Dwyer, Kevin Quinn, Cleary one converted by Thorpe, and a drop goal by Frank Quinn were the Old Belvedere scores in the first half.

A try by Lt. Jackson, converted by Cpl. Byrne, reduced arrears slightly, but a try by McNelis, which Thorpe improved, following a grand break-through by Frank Quinn, put Old Belvedere further ahead. Cpl. Byrne dropped a goal for Curragh Command, but near the end Gerry Quinn and McNelis added further tries for Old Belvedere.

U.C.D. ..... 9 BLACKROCK COLL. 6

Starting on the left wing, and ending about ten yards from the right touch-line, where he passed to Johnson for the latter to score the winning try with about three minutes to go, Kevin O'Flanagan spreadeagled the whole Blackrock defence with a breath-taking display of pace. This was the climax to a match which, apart from the last ten minutes in which three tries were scored was lively without being in the least entertaining. U.C.D. winning by two tries and a goal from a mark to two tries.

With three points apiece following a goal from a mark by O'Flanagan—a superb kick—and a try by Maguire for Blackrock, which Mooney failed to convert from the easiest of positions, a draw seemed the obvious result. Then came a nicely-worked try by Quinn to give U.C.D. the advantage. Blackrock were not yet beaten, however, and Mooney found a gap in the U.C.D. defence to level off the scoring again. Then came O'Flanagan's spectacular run.
